

NEW CEO AND BOARD

Dear Shareholder,

The board of Green Machine Development Corporation is pleased to announce a complete new board of directors and management has taken over operations of the Company and has introduced a new gold project.

John Michael Cross has acquired control of the Company. He will assume the role of President and CEO of the Company. John has introduced two new directors Bradley Jorgensen and Peter Renouf.

Mr Cross said,

As a significant shareholder I have taken control of the company to accomplish the following:

- 1. Get the Company cash flow positive*
- 2. Build up the asset base of the Company*
- 3. List the Company on a recognised stock exchange.*
- 4. Distribute some dividends to shareholders*

I intend to accomplish this by the acquisition of a number of already identified gold leases in the DRC. The gold prospects are currently producing gold and with my plan will be able to significantly increase production through the implementation of more efficient and mechanised processes. With cash flow will come profitability and the means to list the company on a trading exchange.

Shareholders can be assured that our objectives are aligned. My interests and yours are the same. That is get the share price up and pay some dividends.

The board is currently directing its attention towards a new gold project to be known as Red Lake. Further announcements will be made in the very near future concerning this acquisition.

DIRECTORS BIOGRAHPIES

John Michael Cross – President and CEO

Mr. Cross is a mining entrepreneur with a proven track record in the resources industry. He is skilled in identifying opportunities and having the ability to turn an opportunity into a viable business. John is British born with dual Australian nationality, and has held the position of Managing Director, President and CEO in a number of companies in both public and private sectors. His extensive accumulation of experience in alluvial & elluvial mining operations in Sub-Saharan Africa includes diamond, uranium, iron ore, copper and coal mining projects. As owner and operator of an extensive earth moving fleet, John has achieved and maintained a number of long term successful operations. His horizons broadened with arrival in Australia with oil exploration rigs from Canada to set up and operate Simmons Cross Pty Ltd, a Canadian/Australian oil exploration drilling company.

As CEO, John took a green-fields public listed diamond mining project in Angola from scratch to employing over 60 persons securing a full suite of mining equipment, senior management, programming the entire project to a full status alluvial diamond mining operation. His recognition of the escalating world demand for precious metals prompted him to capitalize on past experience and extensive contacts to enter into the gold sector of the mining industry commencing in Democratic Republic of Congo.

Bradley Jorgensen – Director and Chief Operating Officer

Brad, of Danish descent and an Australian citizen currently resides in Perth, Western Australia with his family of two children. He has held the position as executive director and CEO in a number of companies in both public and private sectors He is now focused on mining prospects in sub-Saharan Africa, specifically Zambia and the Democratic Republic of Congo. Brad has a detailed wealth of experience and knowledge in the mining and resources sector in Africa. He has worked in a number of African countries for more than 10 years. He has a unique understanding of the African way of life, customs and idiosyncrasies. Essential knowledge when carrying out delicate negotiating with government ministers and bureaucrats on the African continent. From initial interests held in the copper, cobalt and associated minerals he had the foresight to realize the burgeoning world call for gold and other precious minerals,

Peter James Renouf – Non-executive Director

Mr Renouf is a professional and practicing mining executive with over 20 years experience in the resources industry in Australia. Peter has garnered a wide spectrum of mining and drilling experience on site at the very coalface of the industry. Peter is a valuable asset to the management team. His extensive experience with drill hole and geological exploration programmes is an added plus which well qualifies him for his role of oversight as a Director of the Company. His overall long-term experience in both gas and minerals exploration often in remote and difficult locations has prepared Peter for the management skills required on an African project. The executives and directors will be bolstered by his presence on the board of the Company.

Resignation of previous Board of Directors

All former directors of the company have resigned. The board thanks them for their service to the Company and wishes them well for the future.
